

CAMP FREMONT OFFERS TRAINING FOR COMMISSIONS

The Infantry Officers' Training school, which is to open at Camp Fremont, California, on December first, presents the quickest plan yet offered by any of the training schools for obtaining a commission as second lieutenant.

The course of training lasts about two months. All registrants having the necessary physical and educational requirements are eligible, excepting those in deferred classification on account of industry, occupation or employment including agriculture. Physical requirements are the same as for other training schools.

Men of Class 1-A who registered prior to September 12, 1918, are eligible. In the event that an accepted applicant of this class is drafted prior to being ordered to the camp, he should write to the Commanding General, Southeastern Department, Charleston, S. C., giving his organization and station. When practicable he will be ordered from said station to Camp Fremont.

This is a fine opportunity to try out for a commission. In addition, the candidate will, at government expense, have an interesting trip across the continent, will spend part of the winter at least on the California coast, near San Francisco and the Golden Gate. Candidates must reach the camp between November 25 and December 1st.

Applications will be handled promptly by if sent to Colonel E. S. Walker, at the University of Florida. As it takes some little time to put applications through those desirous of attending the camp are advised against delay in making applications.

BELIEVE DOZEN SLIPS ALL IN OPERATION

(N. E. A. Special.) London, Nov. 9.—There are not nearly so many submarines in the ocean as most persons imagine. It is said by naval authorities that at any average given time there are probably about a dozen in active operation in the channel zone and the Atlantic.

PETERS, ASSASSIN, JEKYLL AND HYDE

By HAROLD E. BECHTOL.

European Manager for Newspaper Enterprise Association.

London, Nov. 9.—A gentle, faithful husband, an indulgent father, a very staunch friend.

Jacob Peters—Russia's man of terror, chief executioner for the Bolsheviks; a man who signs away scores of lives at a time.

Are they two men—or one? Is J. Peters a living reproduction of the story of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde? "It is unthinkable," says Mrs. Jacob Peters, an English woman, who lives in London with her little daughter Maisie.

"He was the kindest of husbands and fathers," she said. "Never, before he left England to go to Russia, in May, 1917, or in letters since, has he ever breathed a word against Great Britain. I think that it is only just that, as an English woman, I should say this."

"Baby constantly speaks fondly of her father, and wonders when he will come back. Why, he was never happier than when spending his evenings at home with us. He couldn't do such things as they say he is doing."

She produced his last letter: "Tell my darling baby that she will see me soon. Look well after our darling. The knowledge that she thinks of me will give me strength in my work. I cannot forget our darling Maisie, in the midst of the very hardest of work."

In Russia, through the long, exciting days following the revolution, Peters for months is still found as Dr. Jekyll: helping his friends, interceding for men after man, and all the while finding time twice a week to send home messages of love.

"Go to Peters," if anything can be done, he'll do it for you," was the advice often given one Anglo-Saxon by another.

Then came the reign of terror, as the Bolshevik power began to wane. To check the counter revolutionaries the Bolsheviks placed power of life and death in the hands of Urisk.

Urisk started the reign of terror. Then he was slain, and into his place stepped Jacob Peters; more remorseless still, if the stories of bloodshed and terrorism in Russia can be believed.

About this time the steady flow of letters from Jacob Peters to his wife and daughter in London was interrupted; perhaps, as Mrs. Peters believes, by the censors.

Refugees recently back from Russia say there is no doubt that the Peters from London is the Peters who, with a swoop of the pen, signs the execution order for scores—and then picks up the next list; whose orders are carried out, blood-thirsty fashion, while the ink is scarcely dry. There is given little credence. At the time of the Houndsditch murder trial, Peters claimed that persons who identified him mistook him for a cousin who looked very much like him. Peters was acquitted, but, if there was a cousin "double," he got away, for police never located any such man.

Information seeping through from Russia by devious routes add to the stories of Peters' execution-mania a remarkable account of his changed appearance.

His suavity of manner is gone, these stories say, and with it his genial smile. He is paler and thinner than ever; he seems to have "shrivelled," one account puts it, and his eyes no longer frankly meet those of the visitor.

Instead they stare with a strange light at the mass of papers on his desk—scraps of evidence on which the fate of hundreds depends.

FRANK DRAPER SENDS FILE OF INTERESTING PAPERS

Jas. A. White is in receipt of a file of the Stars and Stripes, the official newspaper of the American Expeditionary Forces, sent to him by Frank T. Dreher, formerly advertising manager of the John White Store, who is now serving with the American army in France.

The papers are filled with live news of happenings on the battlefield and items of interest to the fighting forces. The Stars and Stripes is well edited and illustrated, carries a good volume of advertising and would be a credit to any metropolitan city.

Dreher is attached to the quartermasters' department and writes enthusiastically of the service. It is his intention to return to Pensacola at the close of the war.

KLONDYKE

Klondyke, Nov. 9.—All influenza victims have recovered and no new cases have been reported.

A number of Klondyke people attended the funeral of the late Mr. Bud Cobb, held at Beulah, last Sunday. The bereaved relatives have the sincere sympathy of this community.

Mr. Clarence Cowan, who has been in the Pensacola Hospital with pneumonia for several weeks, has returned home.

Mr. Ben Lindsay of Pensacola and sister, Mrs. Willie Eckles, of Atlanta, spent the day at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Bailey last Sunday.

Misses Stella and Elma Weaver had as their guests Monday night Misses Marjorie Helton and Ruby Dawkins, and Messrs. Alison Cobb and Charles Helton.

CRIPPLED MEN EAGER TO WORK

Paris, Nov. 9.—Soldiers, mutilated in the war are child-like in their joy over being able, after long periods of suffering and uselessness, to earn money again.

A refugee from the north of France who was mutilated the second year of the war, was employed to whitewash a Red Cross hut at Privas. Tears were in his eyes as the matron gave him 15 francs.

"Thank you, madame! God bless you! This is the first money I have earned for two years!"

Beautiful Hair Thick, Wavy, Free From Dandruff

Draw a moist cloth through hair and double its beauty at once.

Save your hair! Dandruff disappears and hair stops coming out.

Immediate?—Yes! Certain?—that's the joy of it. Your hair becomes light, wavy, fluffy, abundant and appears as soft, lustrous and beautiful as a young girl's after an application of Danderine. Also try this—moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. This will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt or excessive oil, and in just a few moments you have doubled the beauty of your hair. A delightful surprise awaits those whose hair has been neglected or is scraggy, faded, dry, brittle or thin. Besides beautifying the hair, Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff; cleanses, purifies and invigorates the scalp, forever stopping itching and falling hair, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—growing all over the scalp.

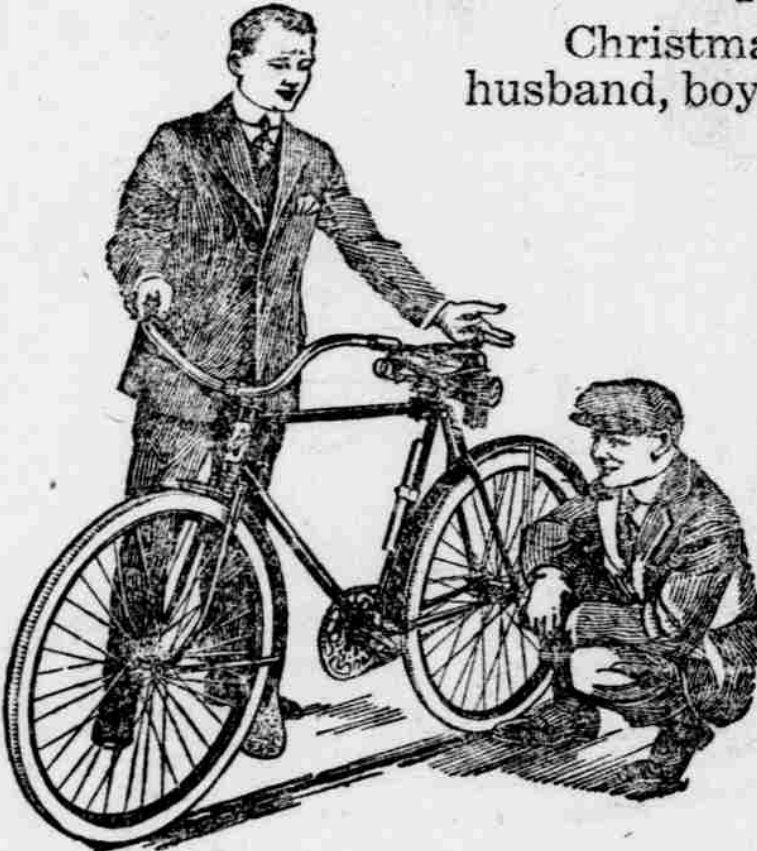

Danderine is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. Its exhilarating, stimulating and life-producing properties cause the hair to grow long, strong, and beautiful. You can surely have pretty, charming, lustrous hair, and lots of it, if you will spend a few cents for a bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter and try it as directed.—Adv.
